Linke: "Canada 150": Aspects of Canadian History, Society and Culture

Vorlesung, 70397, Freitag 11.15-12.45 Uhr, UP-HG-HS 218

150 years ago, the British colonies of Quebec, Ontario, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia united to create the Canadian Confederation, called the Dominion of Canada. The British North America Act that became law July 1st 1867 recognized the Canadian Confederation as an independent nation, which was joined by other provinces and territories in the years that followed. This anniversary provides the occasion for a series of lectures (in English or German) that will introduce the audience to various aspects of Canadian culture, from Indigenous literature to immigration, from the political system to contemporary film and theatre. The individual lectures will be delivered by speakers from different departments of the University of Rostock as well as Canadianists from other universities in Germany, Austria and Poland. The lecture series is supported by the Embassy of Canada and the Gesellschaft für Kanada-Studien and is open to everybody interested in Canadian Studies.

Mackenthun: Survey Lecture American Literature (Part II)

Vorlesung, 70400, Montag 15.15-17.45 Uhr, UP-HG-HS 218

This survey lecture is indispensable for understanding the development of American literature within changing historical contexts; it forms the backbone of your studies of American literature. The second part will carry you from the Civil War through Realism, Modernism, and Postmodernism to the contemporary multicultural literatures of the United States. Special emphasis will be put on the impact of ethnicity, gender, and social relations on American writing. Most texts discussed in the lecture will be taken from the Heath Anthology of American Literature, ed. Paul Lauter (Fifth edition, vols. C-E, ISBN 0-618-54239-6; or a used earlier edition) whose purchase is recommended to students who want to specialize in American Studies. Some texts will be available as a Reader.

Kornexl: Essentials of English Linguistics

Vorlesung, 70406, Dienstag 09.15-10.45 Uhr, U69-AEHS1

Parallel zu dieser Vorlesung muss der Kurs "English Linguistics: An Introduction" besucht werden, da das Modul "Grundlagen der Englischen Sprachwissenschaft I" beide Veranstaltungen beinhaltet und abprüft.

This lecture complements the 'Grundkurs' English Linguistics. It introduces students to the study of language and familiarizes them with the core areas and key concepts of Linguistics, outlining major approaches to the field and specific methods and research tools that enable us to analyze human language in general and English in particular from both a system and a speaker-oriented point of view. The material will be presented in a way that helps participants to develop their analytical skills and engage in active learning.

Schmitt-Kilb: Postwar British Fiction: Sam Selvon, Alan Sillitoe, Muriel Spark

Proseminar, 70449, Mittwoch 11.15-12.45 Uhr, AB28-8023

British literature of the early postwar decades has the reputation of a rather uninspired return to pre-modernist themes and styles. This conventional view overlooks that the changed realities after the war demanded and produced new ways of negotiating issues of class, race and gender in representational forms which go beyond outmoded forms of realism. In the seminar, we are going to read The Lonely Londoners (Sam Selvon, 1956), The Loneliness of the Long Distance Runner (a collection of short stories published in 1959 by Alan Sillitoe) and The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie (Muriel Spark, 1961). The aims of the course are

- to give you an idea of the social, cultural and literary climate of the postwar decades;
- to deepen your "Grundkurs"-knowledge of the analysis of narrative texts;
- to understand and use the categories of race, class and gender as critical tools in the interpretation of literary texts;
- to gain some expertise in developing a critical thesis statement as a first important step towards writing a scholarly essay.

Wallat: Nathaniel Hawthorne's Tales: A Case Study in Literary Criticism

Proseminar, 70093, Freitag 11.15-12.45 Uhr, AB28-8023

Nathaniel Hawthorne's high rank among American fiction writers is the result of various considerations, and his work undoubtedly initiated the most durable tradition in American fiction – that of the symbolic romance that assumes the universality of human nature and explores the complexities and ambiguities of man's choices.

This seminar will provide an introduction to the literary oeuvre of Nathaniel Hawthorne together with a discussion of his distinct contribution to American literature and the critical reception of his prose fiction provided by Hawthorne's contemporaries and recent criticism.

Bolze: Reading the 'Uber-novel': David Mitchell's Fiction

Proseminar, 70450, Dienstag 11.15-12.45 Uhr, AB28-8028

David Mitchell's fiction addresses a great variety of themes: coming-of-age, globalisation, race, class, gender, climate change, and quests for redemption and/or the deeper meaning of life among them. Highlighting and connecting the narratives of characters on the fringe of important events, Mitchell's fiction manages to address both the local and the global perspective; in fact, each new novel adds to his project of an 'uber-novel', a series of interconnected novels with a vast temporal and geographical scope.

In this seminar we will read on Mitchell's first novel, Ghostwritten, a set of interlocking stories in various genres, and his 2014-novel The Bone Clocks. We will explore questions of genre, narrative structure and perspective, as well as the larger context, adding some of Mitchell's short fiction and a selection of critical essays to enhance our understanding of the books.

Please buy & read David Mitchell's Ghostwritten (1999) and The Bone Clocks (2014). The novels are on order at the Andere Buchhandlung; additional texts will be made available at the beginning of the term.

Bartsch Veselá: English Literature for Elementary Schools (LA Grundschule)

Proseminar, 70425, Freitag 09.15-10.45 Uhr, AB28-8028

Johann Wolfgang von Goethe once wrote that every day one should at least hear one little song, read one good poem and see one fine painting. Literature, music and art certainly play an important role also in children's development. This course is designed for any student teachers who are interested in using children's literature in elementary schools. Participants will become acquainted with different genres, periods of English and American literatures, the fundamentals of literary analysis and interpretation of texts suitable for young learners of English. A wide variety of children's literature will be introduced, including traditional stories, classical fairy-tales, fables, animal stories, poems, rhymes, and other literary texts (e.g. Where's Spot? The Very Hungry Caterpillar, Little Red Riding Hood, Jungle Book, Winnie the Pooh, The Paper Bag Princess, Alice in Wonderland, Gulliver's Travels, etc.). Students will read and analyse important children's texts in English and explore how they can be implemented in a primary school learning setting and will be asked to participate in discussions and give presentations on given topics.

You will need a copy of the following books:

Further material will be provided. A copy of the following books is recommended:

Krause: Literary Spaces of the Pacific Northwest: Chinese American and Native American Fiction

Proseminar, 70448, Donnerstag 15.15-16.45 Uhr, U69-H3-223

Over the past centuries, the Pacific Northwest (Oregon, Washington, British Columbia) has gradually developed into a site of diverse transcultural encounters. The area has become a contact zone between the indigenous population – who have lived in this area for thousands of years – European Americans, and Asian immigrants, particularly from China. Places such as Chinatowns and Indian reservations tell the story of this contact and how it shaped people's perceptions of space. The role of place and the struggle for belonging also feature prominently in recent Chinese American and Native American fictional texts set in the Pacific Northwest. In this course, we will look at how these texts create literary spaces and how these spaces affect the development of the protagonist.

Students will need to purchase an edition of Sherman Alexie's Flight (2007) and Jamie Ford's Hotel on the Corner of Bitter and Sweet (2009), as well as a Reader with additional material (available at Copy & Paste).

Mackenthun: Imaginary Homelands. Migration and Loss in Contemporary American Literature

Hauptseminar, 70121, Dienstag 15.15-16.45 Uhr, AB28-8028

For better and for worse, colonialism and globalization have been forcing more and more people to leave their homes and migrate to faraway places, either in search of work or in search of safety from persecution, war, and disaster. The places left behind remain part of one's memory, inevitably getting entangled with the new life. "Imaginary homelands," a phrase coined by Salman Rushdie, expresses this coexistence of a remembered, but also constructed, world of the mind, which frequently is not only another place but also another time (e.g. childhood). Many literary works have dealt with this phenomenon; we will read and discuss four of the best, ranging from a historical novel on the displacement of a Lakota man in Europe, through novels addressing the traumatic experiences of fascism and war, including one (Hamid) that reflects on the war zones of our present moment. Next to the topics migration and transculturation, we will discuss these texts in terms of trauma, memory, love, and 'the human condition'.

Students will have to purchase a Reader (Copy & Paste), as well as the following texts:

All students have to participate in a QUIZ (Lektürekontrolle) in the first session. Please read the first 100 pages of Toni Morrison's novel Home and bring along the text to the first session. If you pass the quiz, you're enrolled in the class regardless of Stud.IP registration.
Schmitt-Kilb: Power, Politics and Populism in Shakespeare's Rome:
Titus Andronicus, Julius Caesar, Coriolanus

Hauptseminar, 70151, Dienstag 11.15-12.45 Uhr, AB28-8023

In May 2016, a few weeks before the Brexit vote and a few months before Trump's victory in the race for presidency, theatre critic Charles McNulty wrote in the LA Times: "Julius Caesar and Coriolanus serve as cautionary tales, warning us that politics is inherently a public relations war and that Reason, that poor campaigner, is in for the race of its life against stoked Fury." Unfortunately, voters familiar with Shakespeare's plays were a minority. A thorough reading of the plays shall help us to understand them in the context of Elizabethan and Jacobean England. Moreover, analyses, interpretations and discussions may reveal the relevance – for our contemporary world of rising populism and fake news – of Shakespeare's understanding of power and politics, of populism and leadership, of rhetoric and demagogy. I suggest you buy and read the Oxford Editions of the three plays as they provide helpful introductions and notes. I highly recommend listening to Oxford professor Emma Smith's brilliant Approaching Shakespeare lectures (podcast available online) on each play as a first intro.

Schmitt-Kilb: Of Wolves and Men: Wolves in Literature

Hauptseminar, 70149, Freitag 13.15-14.45 Uhr, AB28-8023

The human-animal divide is one of the pillars upon which ideas of subjectivity have evolved throughout human history. This divide is a constant theme in literary texts from antiquity until today; in many of these texts, human distinctiveness is articulated against the animal Other and against nature. In this context, the intimate and fraught relationship between human being and wolf occupies a special place. Literary wolves blur the line between us and them – they are frequently represented as uncannily human while at the same time they seem to embody the very opposite of the values and character traits which we like to identify as specifically human. These and more issues will be considered in the context of recent developments in the fields of ecocriticism, animal studies and post-humanism, but also in the context of the heated debates which have been triggered by the return of the wolf in our near environment. In the course, we will read and discuss theoretical positions as well as a variety of (predominantly English) literary examples which highlight this relationship, from Aesop and Ovid to Daniel Defoe and Jack London, from fairy tales (and their feminist postmodern rewritings) to The Jungle Book, from Bram Stoker to Roland Schimmelpfennig and Sarah Hall. A reader will be provided at the beginning of the term. Please buy Sarah Hall, Wolf Border.

Wallat: American Road Literature

Hauptseminar, 70152, Donnerstag 09.15-10.45 Uhr, AB28-8023

This seminar will focus on texts concerned with the experience and fictional presentation of the road in its relation to the formation of national identity. Participants will study traditional canonical literature (novels, short stories, poems and essays) from the early 19th century to the present, including James Fenimore Cooper's The Pioneers (1823), Mark Twain's The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn (1885), John Steinbeck's The Grapes of Wrath (1939), Jack Kerouac's On the Road (1957) and Cormac McCarthy's The Road (2007). The seminar will also engage the long-standing critical debate on American rootedness and mobility as contributors to national identity and character. Participants are asked to buy:

- James Fenimore Cooper, The Pioneers (1823)
- Mark Twain, The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn (1885)
- John Steinbeck, The Grapes of Wrath (1939)
- Jack Kerouac, On the Road (1957)
A Reader with additional texts will be provided at the beginning of the course.

Gruppe 7: Spohr, Donnerstag 11.15-12.45 Uhr, AB28-8023

Parallel zu diesem Kurs muss die Vorlesung "Essentials of English Linguistics" besucht werden, da das Modul "Grundlagen der Sprachwissenschaft I" beide Veranstaltungen beinhaltet und abprüft.

This class introduces students to the different fields of linguistics, their pertinent methods and terminology. The course thus offers a survey of the study of English on different linguistic levels, beginning with its sounds (phonetics/phonology), moving on to an analysis of the form, structure and meaning of words (morphology, lexicology, semantics) and of sentences (syntax) towards an analysis of discourse and language use (pragmatics). An introduction to the analysis of regional or social varieties of language (sociolinguistics) and to the principles of historical linguistics will round off this survey.

Kornexl: Early Modern English: Trends, Texts and Contexts

Hauptseminar, 70040, Mittwoch 09.15-10.45 Uhr, AB28-8023

Linguistically, the time from ca. 1500-1700 stands out as a period of increasing standardization and widespread critical reflection on the status of English (as compared to Latin) and its suitability for an increasing number of purposes. It was during this period that eminent literary figures such as William Shakespeare and seminal texts like the King James Bible left their imprint on the English language. This seminar explores major changes in Early Modern English on the different linguistic levels (pronunciation, spelling, grammar, lexis) as well as the sociocultural and pragmatic conditions under which these changes took place. Specimens from a variety of text types will be provided for illustration, analysis, and evaluation in the light of Present-Day English.

Kornexl: English Dictionaries – Past and Present

Hauptseminar, 70033, Dienstag 13.15-14.45 Uhr, AB28-8023

Dictionaries have for a long time served as essential reference works not only for professional linguists but, first and foremost, for a diverse spectrum of advice-seeking language users. This seminar traces important stages in the development of English lexicography, it explores central aspects of dictionary making and dictionary use (e.g. different types of dictionaries, their methods of compilation, their structure and aims), and asks how the advent of computers and corpora has changed the design and usage of such metalinguistic tools.

Haselow: Varieties of English

Hauptseminar, 70011, Montag 15.15-16.45 Uhr, AB28-8023
The global spread of English has resulted in the emergence of a diverse range of varieties around the world, including so-called "indigenized" varieties such as Indian English or South African English and such typologically distinct varieties as pidgins and creoles. Some of these varieties are continuations of the dialects originally spoken within the British Isles, others arose as contact varieties and function in various capacities in communities around the globe.

In this seminar, we will outline the stages and characteristics of the processes underlying the spread and diversification of English and explore the different sociohistorical settings in which different types of Englishes arose. The overall aim of this seminar is to test the hypothesis that despite all surface differences there is an underlying uniform process that has driven the individual instantiations of the diverse Englishes in different localities, as formulated in the "Dynamic Model of the Evolution of Postcolonial Englishes" by Schneider (2007).

Haselow: Intercultural Communication

Hauptseminar, 70031, Montag, 17.15-18.45 Uhr, AB28-4043c

This seminar deals with the analysis of culture-specific aspects of communication. We will focus on the different ways in which particular communicative activities such as greeting, requesting or complaining are realized in different cultures, and explain what this tells us about cultural conventions, values and norms. Since different cultures have different conventions as to what is appropriate communicative behavior in a particular interactional context, the performance of particular communicative activities is not universal; successful intercultural communication thus requires the participants to know about the different "cultural codes" underlying social interaction. The seminar falls into two parts. In the first part we will settle some important theoretical and methodological issues (culture, pragmatics, speech acts, politeness & face). Following this introductory part, we will discuss a number of case studies that investigate typologically prominent speech act types and their ways of linguistic encoding in different cultures. The case studies are to be conducted by student groups.

Sprau: Fundamentals of Grammar

Übung, 70068, Dienstag, 09.15-10.45 Uhr, U69-H3-222

Grammar is the backbone or architecture of a language since a competent speaker does not only have to master the vocabulary of a given language, but also has to know how to combine words into larger units, such as clauses and sentences. A theoretical knowledge of English grammar is therefore a prerequisite for understanding what speakers do when they use their language. This course is intended to assist students in their study of the grammar of English on an academic level. It provides practice in applying the principles and rules formulated in scientific grammars, focusing on word-classes and the structure of words (morphology) in the first half of the semester and on the principles of English sentence structure (syntax) in the second one.

Spohr: Phonetics and Phonology

Übung, 70078, Donnerstag, 13.15-14.45 Uhr, AB28-8023

This class will focus primarily on the two main standard varieties of spoken English: British Non-Regional Pronunciation, and General American English. The sound systems of these two varieties (i.e. their individual vowels and consonants, and how they interact) will be studied – first for isolated words, then for connected speech. Learning to read and produce IPA transcriptions will be another important aim of this course. Where appropriate, English and German will be compared to each other to highlight teaching/learning difficulties and find possible solutions. While this is not primarily a pronunciation class, the study of phonetics and phonology will help you improve your own pronunciation and equip you with the knowledge needed to teach English pronunciation to students.

5 Kulturwissenschaft

Rosow: Grundkurs: Introduction to Cultural Studies

Grundkurs, 70160
Gruppe 1: Montag 09.15-10.45 Uhr, UP-HG-HS 218
Gruppe 2: Montag 13.15.-14.45 Uhr, UP-HG-HS 218

This course introduces students to the study of culture and provides them with some of the theoretical foundations for later courses in cultural studies. The course is divided into two main sections. It starts with a brief outline of the origins of the field and its history and then progresses by giving students an accessible introduction to some of the core concepts used in cultural studies to analyse and describe social phenomena: globalisation, nation and national identity, class, multiculturalism, ethnicity and 'race', and sex and gender. Students will be shown how these theoretical concepts can be applied to investigate concrete cases. The applications should, among other things, illustrate the usefulness and versatility of the methodological approaches and analytical tools provided by cultural studies. A Reader will be provided at the beginning of the course. Participants also have to buy Hartley, John (2011). Communication, Cultural and Media Studies. The Key Concepts. London and New York: Routledge (ISBN 0-415-26889-3).

Rosow: There Ain't No Black in the Union Jack

Proseminar, 70161, Dienstag 09.15-10.45 Uhr, SCHW-HS3

One of the most interesting challenges for British society in the period after the Second World War was the large-scale immigration of considerable numbers of non-white immigrants from Britain's remaining and former colonies, and the development of a significant multicultural ethnic-minority community. This course examines the historical background of this development, the main periods of immigration from the Empire/Commonwealth, and the position of non-white ethnic minorities in contemporary Britain. Particular attention will be devoted to the crucial but contentious concepts of racism, racial discrimination, assimilation, integration and multiculturalism. A Reader with a selected bibliography will be provided at the beginning of the course.

Wallat: Transcendentalism

Proseminar, 70165, Freitag 09.15-10.45 Uhr, AB28-8023

The transcendentalist movement is generally recognized to be the first major watershed in American literary and intellectual history. Pioneered by Emerson, Thoreau, Orestes Brownson, Margaret Fuller, and Bronson Alcott (among others), Transcendentalism provided a springboard for the first distinctly American forays into intellectual culture: religion and religious reform, philosophy, literature, ecology, and spiritualism. It drove the great creative flowering generally known as the American Renaissance, and its ideas still vitally inform American culture today.

This course will examine the idea and policies advocated by the activists of transcendentalism and thus offer an outline of and insight into this period of American history.

Participants are asked to buy Joel Myerson's reader Transcendentalism. Additional material will be made available on Stud.IP.

Zittlau: Constructions of Old Age in the United States

Proseminar, 70164, Montag 11.15-12.45 Uhr, AB28-8028

This class looks at the changing perception and differing concepts of aging and old age. In the mid-nineteenth century, the showman Phineas Taylor Barnum rose to fame with his travelling exhibition of Joice Heth, an elderly slave woman whom he presented to be the 161-year-old nurse of George Washington. While this show received nation-wide attention, old age was less spectacular, when the families took care of their members at home often confronted with poverty, disabilities and medical needs that they struggled to meet. We will look at the emerging institution of the nursing home as well as representations of those institutions and the elderly in the arts and discuss the contrasting constructions of horror and utopia from the nineteenth century until today. All readings will be available in form of a master copy apart from the book Like a Mule Bringing Ice Cream to the Sun (2017) by Sarah Ladipo Manyika which needs to be purchased. Please be also prepared to engage actively with the elderly when we visit nursing homes nearby.

Bartsch-Veselá: Roots and Wings: Teaching Culture in Elementary Schools

(LA an Grundschulen)

Proseminar, 70218, Freitag 15.15-16.45 Uhr, AB28-8028

Goethe once wrote that there are two things children should get from their parents: roots and wings. Roots to give them a sense of belonging, wings to help free them from constraints and prejudices. English teachers also have to consider pupils' native culture and teach about English-speaking cultures. This course serves as an introduction to cultural studies in the English-speaking countries. Students will learn about history, geography, system of education, multiculturalism, religion, and various feasts celebrated in Great Britain, the USA and Canada. This will be compared to the students' own cultural experience. In addition, participants will learn to develop didactic materials suitable for teaching culture in elementary foreign language classroom. They will be asked to participate in discussions and give presentations on given topics.

A copy of the following book is recommended:

Additional material will be provided.

Linke: The Culturalization of Class in the United States: 'White Trash', 'Hillbillies', and the White Working Class

Hauptseminar, 70205, Dienstag 15.15-16.45 Uhr, AB28-8023

The concept of 'white trash' has been around in U.S. culture, and especially in Southern culture, for a long time. It has recently gained new popularity in popular culture due to, for example, the popularity of white rappers. In this class, we will read about and discuss the history and the meanings of terms such as 'white trash' and 'Hillbilly' and the way in which they have been employed to culturalize class and social inequality. In the second part of the course, we will investigate the diverse uses of these terms from slur to their more recent appropriation by some writers and musicians as part of a 'pop-modern aesthetics of transgression" (Schinko 2010). The primary sources analyzed in class will range from 'white trash' websites and the film 8 Mile (2002) to Dorothy Allison's novel Bastard out of Carolina (1993). Finally, we will discuss J. D. Vance's Hillbilly Elegy (2016), which was widely perceived to describe the social group that was called the "ignored" or "neglected" white working class in the Trump presidential campaign and contributed to Trump's victory. A Reader with text excerpts and articles will be provided at the copy shop "Copy and Paste", Margaretenplatz. Please buy and read: Alison, Dorothy (1993): Bastard out of Carolina J. D. Vance (2016): Hillbilly Elegy: A Memoir of a Family and a Culture in Crisis

Rossow: The Transcultural Dimension of Globalisation

Hauptseminar, 70202, Mittwoch 17.15-18.45 Uhr, AB28-8023

From its inception, British Cultural Studies have responded to social changes and attempted not only to provide the theoretical means to analyse those changes critically but also to offer alternatives to the status quo. In the British context, Cultural Studies started from an interest in working-class and popular culture, and, in response to an increasingly multicultural Britain, shifted its focus to issues of race, ethnicity, and immigration, later becoming increasingly concerned with gender issues. The most recent issues to which Cultural Studies have responded are processes which are commonly subsumed under the umbrella term globalisation. This course attempts to investigate selectively some of the diverse processes of globalisation, their historical, political, and economic context, in addition to the respective analytical and theoretical responses of Cultural Studies with a special emphasis on transcultural aspects and the accompanying discourses. A Reader with a selection of thematically organised texts and the list of topics for term papers will be provided at the beginning of the course.

Garbe: Literarische Texte im Englischunterricht

Übung, 70244, Donnerstag 09.15-10.45 Uhr, AB28-8028

Die Textdidaktik muss vor allem die Fähigkeit fördern, verstehend nachzuvollziehen, was andere bewegt hat, ihre Aussage so zu machen, wie sie es machen. Ein weiterer Aspekt dieser Arbeit sollte es sein, dass den Schülern bewusst wird, dass 'jemanden verstehen' nicht heißt, dass das Verstandene bzw. die Position des anderen auch gebilligt werden muss. Schließlich gehört zur Textdidaktik auch die Fähigkeit, sich selber und anderen durch sprachlich explizierende Formulierungen zu verdeutlichen, was die gegenseitigen Positionen sind. Im Mittelpunkt des Seminars stehen deshalb aktive Methoden im Umgang mit literarischen Texten, die eine stärker traditionelle Teilung in Analyse und Imagination, Intellekt und Emotion vermeiden sollen. Stattdessen werden begründete persönliche Reaktionen auf den Text gefördert, bei denen die Schüler (literatur-)kritische Gedanken und Empathie verbinden können. Dabei wird der Wert individueller Arbeit nicht unterschätzt, jedoch sollen die Schüler zu partizipatorischen und kooperativen Aktivitäten angehalten werden, um Bedeutungen des Textes zu entdecken und sich damit auseinander zu setzen.
Die Lehrveranstaltung findet bis zum 30.11.2017 statt.

Garbe: Darstellendes Spiel im Englischunterricht

Übung, 70250, Dienstag 09.15-10.45 Uhr, AB28-8028

Theoretische Grundlagen des darstellenden Spiels und Möglichkeiten ihrer praktischen Umsetzung stehen im Mittelpunkt dieser Lehrveranstaltung. Die Studenten lernen die motivierende Rolle des darstellenden Spiels kennen und erwerben Kenntnisse über die Möglichkeiten des Einsatzes von zur Dramatisierung geeigneten Texten und Kriterien zu deren Auswahl. Eine optimale Prozessgestaltung wird anhand typischer Fallbeispiele geplant und diskutiert.

Die Lehrveranstaltung findet bis zum 30.11.2017 statt.

Garbe: Kreative Unterrichtsgestaltung

Übung, 70243, Mittwoch 09.15-10.45 Uhr, AB28-8028

Im Mittelpunkt der Lehrveranstaltung stehen verschiedene Formen der schöpferisch-aktivierenden Unterrichtsgestaltung, mit denen die Studenten von den theoretischen Konzepten her und in der praktischen Umsetzung vertraut gemacht werden. Dabei nehmen das Sprachspiel mit seinen verschiedenen Erscheinungsformen und Funktionen sowie die Projektarbeit breiten Raum ein, den die Studenten vielfältig und ideenreich selbständig (einzeln oder in Gruppen) ausgestalten. Neben der unmittelbaren methodischen Arbeit an literarischen Texten werden Möglichkeiten erarbeitet, literarische Kleinformen, Gedichte, Lieder, Popmusik etc. für die Erweiterung der Allgemeinbildung der Schüler, die Entwicklung des kommunikativen Könnens und ihre Motivation für das Erlernen der fremden Sprache zu fördern.

Die Lehrveranstaltung findet bis zum 30.11.2017 statt.

Heterogenität von Lerngruppen als Chance begreifen, miteinander und voneinander Fremdsprachen in der Schule zu lernen: Kooperative Arbeitsformen bieten die Möglichkeit, die individuellen Lernvoraussetzungen der SchülerInnen aller Klassenstufen im Fremdsprachenunterricht gleichermaßen zu fördern. Im Prozess des kooperativen Arbeitens wird nicht nur die Sozial- und Methodenkompetenz der SchülerInnen geschult; Ziel ist vor allem Vermittlung fremdsprachlicher Diskursfähigkeit als Kommunikations- und Reflexionsfähigkeit. In diesem Kurs werden Mikro- und Makromethoden kooperativen Lernens vorgestellt und im peer teaching erprobt.

Gruppe 1: Donnerstag 09.15-10.45 Uhr, U69-H3-222
Gruppe 2: Donnerstag 11.15-12.45 Uhr, U69-H3-222

This course helps students to develop and improve their English language skills. It enables them to maintain their progress in English and improve the specific aspects of English in which they are weakest. More precisely, the aims of the course are to build on the vocabulary that the students already know and increase their range of expression. 'Problem areas' of English grammar are revised in order to increase the students' awareness of and sensitivity to degrees of appropriateness in their use of English. Students are encouraged to improve their English outside class by reading widely and practising it with native speakers and with each other. Last but not least, the students are made aware of the fact that they themselves are most responsible for their own progress. The material is organized in units, each of which is based on a different topic and contains a variety of exercises and activities, focusing on the knowledge and skills students require for their English studies. As they work through the material, they progressively revise and, at the same time, build up their level of proficiency.

Bartsch Veselá: Sprachpraxis II: Getting Grammar Right (for Primary Schools)

Übung, 70305
Gruppe 1: Freitag 11.15-12.45 Uhr, AB28-8028
Gruppe 2: Freitag 13.15-14.45 Uhr, AB28-8028

This course is designed for the future primary school teachers to assist their study of English grammar. Competent speakers of English do not only have to master vocabulary, they also need to know how to combine words into larger units, such as clauses and sentences. This course focuses on the structure of words (morphology) and the principles of English sentence structure (syntax). The emphasis is on the meaning and the use of the grammatical forms. Special attention is given to those points that are often a problem for students. In addition, we will explore different approaches to teaching English grammar to young learners. Participants are asked to buy the book: Eastwood, John (2006). Oxford Practice Grammar with Answers. Intermediate with Tests (and Practice-Boost CD-ROM). Oxford: Oxford University Press.

Gruppe 2: Montag 13.15-14.45 Uhr, U69-H3-416
Gruppe 3: Freitag 09.15-10.45 Uhr, U69-H3-416

This course is designed to help students comprehend, analyse and create written argumentative discourse in English. In this class, students will learn how to develop and formulate central claims (thesis statements) and support them with logical, focused, and progressive argumentation. We will look at how to find evidence and other forms of proof, and to organize ideas in written discourse. Students will explore how best to adapt their arguments to a particular communicative situation, paying attention to the intended audience and the immediate problem to be solved by the text. The course will examine a range of argumentative genres in English (newspaper editorial, advertising, academic paper), although our main focus will be the deliberative essay.

Vaughan: Sprachpraxis III: Rhetorical Strategies in Spoken English

Übung, 70367, Freitag 11.15-12.45 Uhr, U69-H3-416

Politician or paramedic, teacher or technician, reporter or retailer – everyone has "ideas worth spreading". This simple concept is also the mission statement of the organization known as TED (Technology, Entertainment, Design). TED originated in 1984 as an invitation-only conference for numerous and disparate people to network and share intercultural and interdisciplinary views. The group has expanded exponentially to become a non-profit organisation and now also operates on a website (http://www.ted.com/) that provides access under creative commons licensing to over 2,200 presentations and talks from the likes of household names including former President Bill Clinton to lesser known people such as Berkeley Unified School District lunch lady Ann Cooper. In this course, we will listen to various talks, and determine and discuss the argumentation and rhetorical strategies of each in addition to completing exercises designed to develop your language usage.

Spohr: Sprachpraxis III: News and Current Events

Übung, 70366
Gruppe 1: Dienstag 15.15-16.45 Uhr, U69-H3-222
Gruppe 2: Donnerstag 15.15-16.45 Uhr, AB28-8023

In this course, we will closely follow news reports from the English-speaking world and discuss them in class. All students will have to keep up with the latest news and current events during the week, using the webpage http://news.bbc.co.uk/. Each week, a group of students will lead a discussion, providing additional background information and suggesting points for debate. All students will then discuss the issues and events. Active participation is obligatory. This class will help you practise your speaking skills; you will learn how to construct arguments and convince others of your opinion. Furthermore, closely following news and events will increase your knowledge of various English-speaking countries and increase your understanding of their culture.

Bowen: Sprachpraxis IV: Translation: German-English I

Übung, 70355
Gruppe 1: Mittwoch 09.15-10.45, U69-H3-223
Gruppe 2: Mittwoch 11.15-12.45, U69-H3-223

This course offers an introduction to German-English translation skills. Rather than focusing on translation theory, the course aims to give students practical insight into the translating process. In class, students will work on typical translation problems caused by grammatical and lexical factors. Each week we will address a particular grammatical or structural issue that arises from the significant differences between the English and German languages and their respective textual cultures. Over and above class work, students will be expected to prepare a translation each week involving the skills addressed in the previous week's class. Since translating into English – perhaps more than any other activity – demands an intimate knowledge of the language, students will also be given the chance to hone their overall knowledge of the English language.

N.N.: Sprachpraxis IV: Writing Criticism

Übung, 70328
Gruppe 1: Montag 09.15-10.45 Uhr, U69-H3-223
Gruppe 2: Montag 11.15-12.45 Uhr, U69-H3-223

This course give students the opportunity to explore the techniques involved in critical writing and, more specifically, in the evaluative criticism of literary and visual art. Since critical writing presupposes the development of critical reading and understanding, we will start by investigating examples of literary and visual art criticism to discern how critical texts attempt to form a consensus on the value of certain works. In light of our findings, we will examine the appeals, both logical and emotional, deployed by criticism and try our hand at using them in our own writing. In this part of the course, students will be expected to write short essays to improve their skills in making evaluative arguments. Next, we will move on to focus on a selection of critical genres, including film and book reviews. In this section, students will have the chance to improve their abilities to write both academic and journalistic text types and their corresponding structures and styles.

Bowen: Academic Writing

Übung, 70360, Donnerstag 11.15-12.45 Uhr, AB28-8028

This course is intended for MA students. However 'modulized' LA students may also take the class as the first part of Sprachpraxis IV.

This course focuses on academic writing as a distinct discourse, with its own structures and register. To gain a better awareness of the features of academic writing, we will read selections from various academic texts which exemplify typical features of academic prose. On the basis of these readings, we will discuss the elements of good academic prose and work toward putting these elements into practice. Particular attention will be paid to those elements of prose style that students have not had the chance to perfect (e.g. appositions, modifiers, parallelism, effective punctuation.) Alongside issues of structure and style, we will take a close look at the writing and research strategies and examine how one uses references and puts together an effective outline.

Mackenthun: Imaginary Homelands. Migration and Loss in Contemporary American Literature

Hauptseminar, 70121, Dienstag 15.15-16.45 Uhr, AB28-8028

For better and for worse, colonialism and globalization have been forcing more and more people to leave their homes and migrate to faraway places, either in search of work or in search of safety from persecution, war, and disaster. The places left behind remain part of one's memory, inevitably getting entangled with the new life. "Imaginary homelands," a phrase coined by Salman Rushdie, expresses this coexistence of a remembered, but also constructed, world of the mind, which frequently is not only another place but also another time (e.g. childhood). Many literary works have dealt with this phenomenon; we will read and discuss four of the best, ranging from a historical novel on the displacement of a Lakota man in Europe, through novels addressing the traumatic experiences of fascism and war, including one (Hamid) that reflects on the war zones of our present moment. Next to the topics migration and transculturation, we will discuss these texts in terms of trauma, memory, love, and 'the human condition'.

Students will have to purchase a Reader (Copy & Paste), as well as the following texts:

All students have to participate in a QUIZ (Lektürekontrolle) in the first session. Please read the first 100 pages of Toni Morrison's novel Home and bring along the text to the first session. If you pass the quiz, you're enrolled in the class regardless of Stud.IP registration.

Haselow: Intercultural Communication

Hauptseminar, 70031, Montag, 17.15-18.45 Uhr, AB28-4043c

This seminar deals with the analysis of culture-specific aspects of communication. We will focus on the different ways in which particular communicative activities such as greeting, requesting or complaining are realized in different cultures, and explain what this tells us about cultural conventions, values and norms. Since different cultures have different conventions as to what is appropriate communicative behavior in a particular interactional context, the performance of particular communicative activities is not universal; successful intercultural communication thus requires the participants to know about the different "cultural codes" underlying social interaction. The seminar falls into two parts. In the first part, we will settle some important theoretical and methodological issues (culture, pragmatics, speech acts, politeness & face). Following this introductory part, we will discuss a number of case studies that investigate typologically prominent speech act types and their ways of linguistic encoding in different cultures. The case studies are to be conducted by student groups.
