with Jayne Thompson

Jayne Thompson is an Associate Teaching Professor of English at Widener University. She is the director of the Chester Writers House in Chester, PA, a non-profit community writing center. She taught Accelerated Literature at Chester High School for one school year as a special project and has taught in many afterschool programs for students as young as eight. She has been a volunteer teacher at S.C.I. Graterford for seven years and recently published an anthology of writings geared towards young people with incarcerated students. Serving House Books published Letters to My Younger Self: An Anthology of Writings by Incarcerated Men at S.C.I. Graterford and a Writing Workbook in 2014. The project is entirely non-profit; any profit from the book goes to providing free copies to young people at juvenile detention facilities and high schools where she offers writing workshops.
